Ultimate News

During the exciting game of ultimate frisbee held on Monday, one member of our group was conspicuously absent. It was Jeff (no work project) Rand. Under the guise of 'defrosting the chicken' Mr. Rand returned to camp and distributed his propaganda rag. While claiming to provide news related to Winter Camp, The Republic has discovered that this unauthorized yellow journal was actually produced at least two days before Winter Camp.

Work Projects

keeping with tradition, Mr. Rand was once again 'busy' during the service project. According to one (very) reliable witness, Mr. Rand was busy 'sporting around in Ozzie's truck.'

This activity maintained a two year tradition of Mr. Rand being elsewhere during the work project.

Service Record Questioned

According to Nutiket, a member of the Order of the Arrow induction staff, Jeff Rand's service record is currently under close scrutiny. The arrowman, often called the guardian of the circle, said 'I think we will be investigating Mr. Rand's record very closely. Apparently, he is willing to serve, but rarely forgets himself in serving others. This sort of self-serving effort is not what our Order is about.'

Rand was not available for comment.

Real Weather

Cold, possibly snow and rain.

Apparently, the members of the D-A Ranger staff are attempting to conserve valuable supplies and help keep camp costs down. One of their steps is to require that units request toilet paper rather than issue an excessive amount. The members of the radical BOA attempted to exploit this situation and cause a panic.

Unfortunately, their scheme backfired and many people used the Allogagan as a substitute for more traditional paper products. One individual who used the Allogagan was quoted as saying 'Look, now the Allogagan is covered with what it contains.'

CHR Monument Erected

Several articles stolen from CHR were stashed in the woods today. The event, expected to take about three hours took much longer, as the thief was unable to decide on a suitable place to hide his ill-gotten gains. Eventually, he reached a decision, and the disgusted arrowmen helped him bury the booty and erect a fence to help secure it. Most returned following the construction of the fence, but a few remained behind to create a 'treasure map' showing the coordinates of the stash.

In light of the recent discovery of the previous theft, the guard around the Lincoln Statue has been doubled.

Musical Meal Ruined

As members enjoyed the musical selection chosen by the youth, Mr. Rand decided that the youth were (of course) wrong. He then turned off the radio. The situation deteriorated rapidly, as Mr. Rand serenaded the members with a make-shift torture on trumpet. He then insisted that classical music be used. Sadly, neither he nor anyone else was able to discover a beat in the elitist tripe he calls music.
